

Layna Mosley, Associate Professor of Political Science University of North Carolina, answered questions about her paper on "Risk, Uncertainty, and Autonomy: Financial Market Constraints in Developing Nations" on May 12, 2008, at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies.

Layna Mosley (far left end of table) spoke as part of the Mershon Center's Globalization, Institutions and Economic Security (GIES) Workshop, co-sponsored by the Department of Political Science.

Irfan Nooruddin (left), Assistant Professor of Political Science at The Ohio State University, talks with Layna Mosley about her paper, which was co-authored with Professor of Political Science Sarah Brooks.

Richard Herrmann (left), Director of the Mershon Center for International Security Studies, talks with Sarah Brooks and Layna Mosley on May 12, 2008. Brooks invited Mosley to speak at the Mershon Center as part of the Globalization, Institutions and Economic Security (GIES) Workshop.